YANKS CLOSE IN ON LEYTE ESCAPE ROAD

ISLAND APPARENTLY WRITTEN OFF BY NIPPONESE

BY C. YATES McDANIEL

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Thursday, Nov. 2 (P)—Dismounted First cavalry troops were locked today in a seesaw battle with a large Japanese force at Carigara for control of the town seven miles east of the only escape highway left open to the retreating enemy on Leyte.

Maj. Gen. Verne Mudge's men, moving west along the Carigara Bay coast from Barugo, opened the vital engagement yesterday just east of Carigara town.

Moving ahead after the skirmish, the troops encountered a larger enemy force and engaged it in the town itself where fall would pave the way for a drive on Pinamopan, north terminus of the escape road to Ormoc.

Sherman Tanks Stopped

While this fight continued, other Japanese strove with counterattacks, concentrated artillery and bridge demolitions to check another peril to Carigara town posed from the south by 24th division troops of Maj. Gen. Fred Irving.

Heavy mortar fire pinned down the Yanks for hours. General Irving countered with an intense bombardment of the enemy positions. Still the Japanese held on, Sherman tanks tried to break through over broken terrain but failed in the face of plain blank fire.

The Nipponese were dislodged only after the American infantrymen had outflanked the enemy positions.

Today's communique placed the 24th within six miles of Carigara but field dispatches put them much closer, one saying they were only two miles from joining up with the First cavalry in the showdown fight.

Clarifying the military intentions of the enemy, today's communique said flatly the fighting around Carigara was intended by the Nipponese to hold open an escape route south toward Ormoc.

Rockets Scattered

This would indicate the Japanese already have written off Leyte Island as lost except for the usual delaying actions.

The Japanese, however, kept up reinforcement of Ormoc.

First cavalry units, which a few days ago actually entered Carigara from Barugo and then withdrew were once more approaching the stronghold.

The communique said the dismounted cavalry elements reported "sharp clashes around Carigara."

To the south where the Japanese have been so scattered that only cleanups remain, the erasure of holdout Japanese at Catmon Hill northwest of Dulag was reported.

Fifth airforce fighters based on Leyte and speedy patrol torpedo boats constantly disrupted the Nipponese reinforcement activities at Ormoc, blasting barges and also blowing up a big ammunition dump in that area. A small freighter and lugger were sunk.

The weakened enemy airforce tried more harassing attacks. Six were shot down by fighters, a seventh by anti-aircraft fire at a cost of one American fighter.

Roosevelt Selling Party To Highest Bidder, Says Dewey

BY GARDNER BRIDGE

Boston, Nov. 1 (P)—In a dual attack on President Roosevelt and his "violent supporters," Governor Thomas E. Dewey declared tonight that his Democratic opponent, in an "overwhelming desire to perpetuate himself in office for sixteen years, has put his party on the auction block—for sale to the highest bidder."

And the highest bidder, Dewey said in a prepared broadcast, is not the "notorious One Thousand Club," but the "political action committee of Sidney Hillman and the Communists of Earl Browder."

While asserting he had no quarrel with Communism in Russia, the Republican presidential nominee played both Hillman and Browder as leading a fourth term move "so our form of government may more easily be changed."

Hillman Big Boss

Re-echoing the phrase which he has attributed to Mr. Roosevelt—"clear everything with Sidney"—Dewey said:

"Sidney Hillman has become the biggest political boss in the United States, and in the words of David Dubinsky, Sidney Hillman is a 'front for the Communists'."

Dubinsky, president of the potent International Ladies Garment Workers' Union, split with the American Labor party last spring over the Communist issue. He formed a right wing element of the party.

Dewey, addressing a Republican rally in the 13,500 seat Boston Garden, declared that with Hillman's aid "the Communists are seizing control of the New Deal, through which they aim to control the government of the United States."

"If they should succeed," he said, "the fundamental freedoms of every American would stand in gravest jeopardy."

The former New York prosecutor said Hillman "stalks the country squeezing dollars for the fourth term campaign out of the working men and women of America, under threat that if they do not give the dollar, they will lose their jobs."

The New Deal, he said, has become a "collection of warring factions, tied together only by a consuming passion for power."

"That's why my opponent is compelled to solicit the support of bigoted reactionaries on the one hand and of Communists on the other," he added.

DEWEY CALLED HOPE OF LABOR

Kelly Pictures Return Of Teamwork In Industry

Indianapolis, Nov. 1 (P)—Gov. Harry F. Kelly of Michigan declared tonight Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican nominee for president, "proposes to bring bedrock realism into his relationships with the American industrial machine."

In an address prepared for delivery at a Marion county Republican rally, Kelly asserted Dewey as president would "treat American workmen and industrialists as members of the American family, not as classes whose interests are diametrically opposed. He will restore the working team of government, business and labor to its rightful place in the American sun."

Michigan's Republican governor said the American voters would decide how well President Roosevelt could meet the test of conversion from war to peace by how well it met the original conversion from peace to war.

The voters, Kelly said, "know the administration has not met the acid test in the twelve turbulent years through which this nation has just passed. In all conscience, is there any reason to believe that these same men can meet the even more rigid tests of the future?"

Old Shell Explodes And Kills Schoolboy

Detroit, Nov. 1 (P)—A 37-millimeter shell, souvenir of World War I, exploded in a corridor of Tappan Intermediate school today, fatally injuring Victor Hall, 12, who was carrying it to class to illustrate a public speaking assignment.

Although the corridor was crowded during a change in classes, Victor alone was struck by the fragments of the shell, which had been in his family for years.

Quadruplets Are Born To 118-Pound Mother

Philadelphia, Nov. 1 (P)—A slight, 30-year-old former government girl gave birth to quadruplets—three girls and a boy—with in a space of two minutes here today, in the first caesarean operation quadruple delivery in medical history.

Tonight the Pennsylvania hospital said the tiny babies and their five-foot-two, 118-pound mother, Mrs. Kathleen Hatcher Cirimello, were doing well and that the babies would live.

The quads, their expected birth well publicized in advance, were born between 11:12 and 11:14 a. m. (EWT), the boy last, in a Pennsylvania hospital surgery crowded with obstetricians, pediatricians and nurses.

"She thought they would be twins," said her husband, Joseph Cirimello, 30, an SEC financial analyst.

A doctor blurted out the news to her during the 20-minute operation but, blindfolded and under spinal anesthesia, she did not hear. The chief obstetrician, Dr. John C. Ullery, 37, told her two hours later and said she seemed elated.

The babies, weighing three to three and a quarter pounds, were born between 11:12 and 11:14 a. m. (EWT), the boy last, in a Pennsylvania hospital surgery crowded with obstetricians, pediatricians and nurses.

The father paced the corridor outside, alone.

NAZIS BLOCKED NEAR BOLOGNA

Fierce Counter Attack Proves Costly For Both Sides

Rome, Nov. 1 (P)—American Fifth army troops have hurled back several vicious German counterattacks south of Bologna in which Nazi infantrymen were supported by flame-throwers, Allied headquarters said today.

The fighting was termed costly for both sides.

The counterattacks were aimed at Allied positions which had dangerously into the German line. The most determined enemy assault was launched against American units on a 2,000-foot hill five and a half miles southwest of Castel San Pietro, a junction point on the lateral Bologna-Rimini highway.

British Eighth army patrols on the Adriatic worked forward along the coast toward Ravenna and drove the Germans from two prepared positions north of the Bevano river.

On the Italian west coast in the area east of Massa, Brazilian forces captured La Rocchetta, Lama Di Sotto and Pradoscello.

ALLIES MOVE SUPPLY SHIPS INTO ANTWERP

LAST NAZIS BEING CLEARED OUT OF ESTUARY

BY HOWARD COWAN

London, Thursday, Nov. 2 (P)—Allied shipping already has entered the three-mile-wide Schelde river estuary with supplies bound for the great Belgian port of Antwerp, the Berlin radio said early today.

This reported movement of shipping toward the important port which is expected to supply future Allied thrusts into Germany came as triple assault forces stalked the last Germans within gunshot of the vital 50-mile long inland waterway.

Key Island Invaded

"German E-boats attacked enemy shipping in the Schelde estuary," was the way the Berlin radio stated the situation, "and destroyed one vessel of 2,000 tons, and a small gunboat."

Allied shock troops, including British commandos thrown ashore under cover of a blazing naval bombardment, smashed onto Walcheren island at the entrance of the Schelde estuary in Holland from the east, west and south today in a strong assault to knock out the last German batteries barring Antwerp to Allied shipping.

Troops of the British Second army broadened their foothold on the Maas river in south central Holland to more than a mile and maintained relentless pressure against German rearguards.

Germans Escape Pocket

A spokesman for Lt. Gen. Sir Miles G. Dempsey, commander of the British Second army, tacitly admitted that a skilful withdrawal from the Breda pocket had saved the bulk of some 40,000 German troops who for several days were threatened with entrapment. He said only enemy rearguards were left south of the Maas and that the main German 15th army now was fortifying a new Rotterdam-Arnhem defense line.

British commandos swarmed ashore on the southern and western coasts of Walcheren island—which measures only 8 by 10 miles square—in the early dawn and were reported making good progress last night. Canadian troops at the same time fought their way through a virtual wall of Nazi steel in storming across a causeway from South Beveland island on the east and establishing a firm foothold on Walcheren.

One commando force made a direct assault on the harbor and town of Vlissingen (Flushing) in 50 or 60 landing boats. The German radio said a "heavy battle" was raging for the town, which sits at the southern tip of Walcheren island and commands the three-mile wide entrance to the Schelde from the North Sea.

Remnants Hold Out

Heavy naval gunfire supported the seaborne landing. Berlin said that Nazi fliers had seen a British battleship of the King George V (35,000 ton) class, four cruisers and numerous landing vessels standing offshore, "which indicates that other attempts on Walcheren are to follow."

Some 2,000 battered Germans still held out in tiny pockets on the Belgian coast outside the entrance to the estuary, but they had lost fortifications near Breskens, across from Vlissingen, which commanded the big waterway. Last night

May-Time Weather Starts November, New Records Set

(By The Associated Press)

November came in yesterday (Wednesday) with a warm air mass in the midwest and east that sent the temperature to record-setting heights.

In the Central states the mercury soared to 75 degrees at Minneapolis, 77 at Chicago for an all-time high for Nov. 1. 75 at Detroit breaking the record by five degrees, and touched 80 at St. Louis.

The unseasonable heat wave which turned Indian Summer into Maytime pushed eastward across Northern states with readings of 77 degrees at Indianapolis, 75 at Columbus, Ohio, and 73 at Philadelphia.

The warm air blanket reached New York state where it ran the temperature up to 74 degrees at Buffalo for the highest mark for the date on record. The Eastern seaboard had high readings but mainly in the 60's with 65 in Boston and 68 in New York City.

The coolest area in the nation ran from the Mountain states to the Pacific Coast.

In Havre, Montana, the mercury hit a high of 35 degrees, a low of 33.

It's Time For A Change (An Editorial)

Farmers of America, under the New Deal, have been regimeted as has no other section of our national population in all the history of this nation.

They have been told what they can raise on their lands; the price they shall receive for their crops and at a time when farm products are desperately needed to win the war, they have been denied both adequate manpower and machinery to produce the food needed by America and her allies. By working longer hours than any other class of labor and enduring hardships that could be imposed on no war plant worker, farmers of America have performed a miracle of production, in spite of New Deal hindrances.

Farmers of America have not forgotten the program of "planned scarcity" early in New Deal history, when little pigs were slaughtered by the million and every other row of corn was plowed under, to carry out an economic theory as false as the fundamental thoughts of the brain trusters who enforced their edicts.

In the war years farmers have seen the administration in power pamper and placate power-made war plant and other necessary workers, with no thought to the problems of the farmer, performing an equally important war job.

Farmers of America, in the main, are rugged individualists. They neither want nor ask favors—but they do expect justice.

Instead of justice they have been made the political football of the New Deal administration for 12 long years.

It is TIME FOR A CHANGE.

BRITISH FORCES REACH SALONIKA

Second City Of Greece Evacuated By Enemy In Flight

Rome, Nov. 1 (P)—The Allied command announced today that advanced British patrols had reached Salonika, Greece's second city and the principal seaport of the Balkan peninsula, and Berlin said that Nazi forces had evacuated the port.

The Allied communique gave no details as to whether British troops actually had entered the city, over which a heavy pall of smoke from German demolitions has hung for several days. The German high command's daily communique said Salonika "was evacuated in the course of our disengaging movements in the Balkans, unimpeded by the enemy."

Sixty-five miles west of Salonika in the north of Kozane British troops and Greek guerrillas maintained pressure on German forces attempting to flee from Greece. Last reports said these Allied forces were less than seven miles from the Yugoslav border.

RADIO MIXES UP STORY OF U. S. AIR BLOW

JAP CAPITAL FEARS SPREAD OF FIRE FROM BOMBS

(By The Associated Press)

Japan's radios blurted out confusedly that U. S. Superfortresses raided Tokyo yesterday (Wednesday, Japanese time) and they hinted that they threw some parts of the capital into panic.

Some factories "lost their calmness" during the ordeal, one announcer reported. This presumably was due to fire or fear of fire in the readily combustible metropolitan areas.

The reports, conflicting and unconfirmed, were picked up by the federal communications commission and reception was incomplete. The U. S. war department said it had no word of aerial operations over Tokyo.

First Since 1942

If substantially true, this outbreak signified the first air raid on the Japanese capital since April 18, 1942, when Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle's carrier based B-25s gave the city its first load of U. S. bombs.

It also apparently was the first visit of Superfortresses to Tokyo. They have attacked elsewhere in the Nippon homeland six times, mainly against naval and ship repair points.

The enemy reports at first said two Superfortresses raided Tokyo. Then they changed it to only one plane. Finally they announced several of the big planes had appeared and that they remained over the area for about half an hour. One of them said the planes dropped no bombs.

One broadcast asserted the planes "fled hastily" during a counter-attack of some kind. Details were not given. Another said the Superforts did not attempt to attack. A third reported they were driven off by fighter planes.

Another version said no air raid warning was given. This was the one which rattled about the loss of composure in the factories. It also admonished the people to tighten up their air raid defense machinery and reminded them that their homes would burn easily.

"Face Saving" Charged

Still another said an air raid alarm was sounded and that aerial defense headquarters issued instructions.

They agreed fairly well that the raiders passed over the Kanto region, which is the eastern section of Honshu Island, including Tokyo and Yokohama, and that they probably came from the Marianas Islands, where the Americans have moved in, on Saipan, Tinian and Guam.

Another announcer stated "several tens of large type planes made two raids in the morning on Truk Island from the direction of the

Water Gardening Expert Tells How To Raise Potatoes

BY WALTER WARREN
(AP) Newsfeatures
Berkeley, Calif.—W. F. Gericke, hydroponics pioneer, has made a discovery which he believes can boost productivity of home gardens spectacularly.

It can enable a home gardener to raise a total of 5,000 bushels of potatoes in three crops a year on an acre of hydroponics tanks, he says.

The discovery is that growing plants in water changes the root structure. Anchor roots cannot grow in water. There is no anchorage for them—no resistance, no development. Only the absorptive roots grow—those whose function is to take up water and food.

The conception opens a wide field of implications, both scientific and practical, Gericke believes. The potato grower using hydroponics tanks and seedbeds puts weight on the beds. Weighting the seedbed litter gives the tubers something to buck, and they grow. Without enough resistance they do not grow as large.

Gericke now grows his hydroponics spuds to a couple of pounds or so apiece. Previously he spent 15 years experimenting with water culture, and never was able to get potatoes to grow in his shavings beds as large as the biggest Idaho potatoes.

He figures 5,000 bushels per acre per year this way: Berkeley climate will produce three crops a year in the same tanks, averaging 1,600 bushels per acre per crop and running up to 2,000 bushels.

The information can be used to produce the reverse of big growth—dwarfs. His evergreens grown in hydroponics are dwarfs—because the root architecture has been changed, and with it, the architecture of the tree. He says he can grow miniature redwoods—little imitations of the mature California giants.

Home gardeners, he says, can use hydroponics to multiply vegetable production on limited space. It enables the gardener to give his plants three to four times the water they could get from soil, from half again to twice as much air through the root system, and several times as much nutrient for plant growth.

Hydroponics tanks can be made out of concrete, lumber or tar paper. Seedbeds are made out of one-by-three scantlings, for sides, with bottoms of chickenwire reinforced by lath. Cost of the hydroponics chemicals, Gericke says, is about 10 cents per bushel of potato crop.

these Germans were being driven back through the streets of the little coastal village of Knocke, four miles east of Zeebrugge, and were about ready for the clean-up.

Since they opened their campaign October 6 to clear the Scheldt the Canadians had captured 18,000 prisoners and liberated more than 850 square miles.

Countryside Flooded
Boggy terrain and scarcity of good roads held back the surge of American, British, Canadian, Polish and Dutch troops to the Maas north of Antwerp as much as German resistance.

On the eastern flank of the Dutch corridor British Tommies reached a canal nearly two miles east of the recaptured town of Liesel and advanced another two miles southeast down a road to Meijel.

Some 17,000 Nazi troops holding out in the French port of Dunkerque were reported to have opened sluice gates and flooded more ground around the town, forcing besieging British troops to withdraw slightly. In an effort to sustain the morale of the Dunkerque garrison and encourage it to hold out as long as possible the Germans were said to be dropping mail into the town by plane at night.

More than 500 RAF bombers gave Cologne another heavy going-over last night, and a British air spokesman said the big Rhine industrial city was being turned into "more of a liability than an asset" to the Nazis.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Cracker-barrel versus Dog House

Most of the political conventions in our town are held around the cracker-barrel—in Sam Abenoth's store.

We were settling how the country should be run the other night when Homer Watson starts to put in a word.

"Wait a minute, Homer," Sam said sharply, "did you vote in the last election?"

"Well," Homer stammered, "I was awfully busy just at the time."

"That don't matter," Sam insists. "Free speech around this cracker-barrel is for them who help protect it—and all the other freedoms in America—by voting. Folks that just talk freedom don't count here."

From where I sit, it doesn't make any difference how you vote—the important thing is that you do vote. Call it a sacred right if you want to, but to me, it is the bedrock of the whole idea of democracy.

JAPANESE LOSE FACE

Somewhere in the South Pacific (P)—In the invasion of Guam, Marines were warned against violating the privacy of native homes. During the attack, one mortar squad carefully heeded a neatly painted sign in English in front of a native house. No one molested its privacy until late that night when a Japanese soldier was seen sneaking about the premises. Then Marines surrounded the house and killed five Japanese soldiers hiding there. The neatly painted sign was a piece of Japanese handwork. It read: "Marines—Please Keep Out."

Lt. Birkenmeier Is Well, Parents Told In Enemy Broadcast

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Birkenmeier, 1008 Ninth avenue south, received assurance Wednesday that their son, Lt. John Birkenmeier, now a German prisoner of war, is in good health.

A recent propaganda broadcast, during which Lt. Birkenmeier was allowed to speak, was intercepted by American listening stations, and was relayed to Escanaba by Western Union. Mr. and Mrs. Birkenmeier are quite satisfied that the message is authentic, since their son's correct army number was mentioned. The wire reads: "Dear Mother and Dad: Am alright and am a prisoner of war in Germany. We were shot down.

Please don't worry about me at all. I can't send much mail but most any amount can come to me. Am hoping to see you before too long, but it will be (long?) getting around to it. I am in a permanent camp "staglag luft 1." Red Cross is swell. Lots of love, John."

Included in the wire was a statement from the provost marshal that the broadcast supplements all previous reports.

Lt. Birkenmeier was first reported missing in action, and on Monday, Oct. 23, his parents were advised by the war department that their son was a prisoner of war. He was shot down on a B-24 and was shot down on a mission on Aug. 28.

It has been estimated that the average American knows from 25,000 to 35,000 words.

Groesbeck Is Right

APARENTLY Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler is becoming a permanent thorn in the side of the Michigan Civil Service Commission.

Just because former New Deal highway commissioners in Michigan, Murray D. VanWagoner and Donald L. Kennedy, converted the personnel of that department into a sordid political machine that was used with telling effect, back in the days when just New Dealers were running the affairs of the old Democratic party in Michigan, does not constitute a valid reason for permitting Commissioner Ziegler to do the same thing, in even a mild way.

Practically since he assumed office Commissioner Ziegler has been at war with the state civil service commission, because of his efforts to place employees in his department in civil service exempt positions. Certainly the head of an important state department should be permitted some latitude in naming some key employees in critical positions, outside of civil service, but the outburst of former Governor Alex Groesbeck, now chairman of the Michigan Civil Service Commission, directed at Mr. Ziegler's tactics, at the Tuesday meeting of the commission, should be convincing that there is at least some fire, back of all this smoke. The former governor told his fellow commissioners that the present highway commissioner was "making monkeys" of them, in granting another civil service exempt post to the commissioner.

Mr. Groesbeck, a three term governor of this state, while inactive in state politics for many years, is known for his independence of thought and action and he still holds the confidence of thousands of Michigan's people. What he says as chairman of commission, named by the people of Michigan to root politics out of state department appointments, carries a lot of weight with a lot of people.

Neither Commissioner Ziegler, nor any other department heads in Michigan's government, should be permitted to follow New Deal's example in building a political machine in the highway, or any other department.

Manistique Is Fortunate

THE problem of providing jobs for the millions of returning servicemen when the war is over would be a relatively simple one if there were more men with the vision and determination of Frank LeMaire, of Manistique, who announced this week extensive expansion of his Manistique Tool and Manufacturing company to meet the soldier re-employment problem in his community.

LeMaire plans a postwar employment of approximately 500 men, compared with the present employment of 130 workers at his plant. Virtually all of the additional employees will be selected from the ranks of returning servicemen.

It is a remarkable tribute to the American way of life that a native of Germany who was in the Kaiser's army in World War I has shown his appreciation for American citizenship in the positive manner that Frank LeMaire has done in the present world war.

The Manistique Tool and Manufacturing company was established immediately following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. It was established without federal or local subsidy. Actually the establishment of the company was made under the most adverse conditions. There was no trained labor locally. Machine tools were scarce and available only with high priorities. High priorities, in turn, were obtainable only to fill war contracts that the company did not then possess.

LeMaire took these and other obstacles in stride and established a going business that is a pride of the people of Manistique. The wage rates and working conditions are among the best in the Upper Peninsula.

The Manistique industrialist, who came to the upper peninsula to build a tourist resort and stayed to develop an important new industrial plant, is doing something about the postwar reemployment problem while most of the rest of the country does little except talk about it.

Should Also Cooperate

EVEN those who have been most sympathetic toward Soviet Russia for her courageous fighting and sacrifice in the war with Germany will be inclined to feel that the Moscow government must also share responsibility in the achievement of Allied unity.

When the Germans were running roughshod over her territory, the Moscow government fervently prayed for aid from the democratic or Russian-called "capitalist" nations. The prayers were answered when the Allies, particularly the United States, sent thousands of planes, tanks, bazookas and other equipment under the Lend-Lease program.

With this material assistance, the Russians were able to drive the Nazis back to their homeland. Now, the Moscow government begins to display a haughty, stand-offish attitude. Latest example of this policy is Moscow's refusal to attend the International Aviation Conference, meeting in Chicago this week. The Russian government gives as its reason for being absent the fact that delegates of Switzerland, Portugal and Spain have been invited to the same parity. The three nations, the Moscow government charges, are pro-Fascist and Russia does not want to associate with them.

Spain and Portugal have pro-Fascist backgrounds, it is true, but to put Switzerland, the most shining example of a democracy, in the same category is the height of something or other. It will be recalled that Stalin once signed a non-aggression pact with Hitler when the democratic, anti-Fascist nations were reeling under the blows of the Nazi blitzkrieg. Would that make Soviet Russia pro-Fascist, too? If there is not to be a continuance or a spread of suspicion of Russia in this country Moscow must come half way and try to be fair and cooperative. Americans do not feel that only Moscow has the right answers to all these international questions.

Canada Seeks Tourists

THE Upper Peninsula and other Great Lakes vacation regions could obtain much valuable information for a postwar tourist development program by paying close attention to what Canada is planning to do to lure vacationists to her provinces.

Before the war, recreation was a 198 million dollar industry in Canada, but now our neighbors are planning to boost its value to a billion dollars annually, according to a recent article in the Wall Street Journal.

Long known for their hospitality, the Canadians are planning to do even a better job of it after the war. They will offer lecture courses to police, customs officers and others on how to treat visitors courteously. Since hunting and fishing has been a mainstay of the Canadian tourist business, 95 per cent of which has come from the United States, extensive plans are being made for restocking the forests and waters.

More festivals like the Calgary Stampede, trips through the interesting mines, marketing of more native handicraft items, improvement of highways, building of airports to cater to flying tourists and other attractions will be offered to the postwar traveling public. Canada also plans to capitalize the widespread publicity given to the Alaska highway. Although few tourists are likely to take the long automobile trip to Alaska, her recreational publicists are smart enough to realize that this angle can be used to direct public attention toward Canada.

Emphasis is to be placed upon offering tourist attractions with a purely Canadian flavor. It is an idea that could be copied and used to good advantage in this region.

SOO TANNEN "E" AWARD

(Sault Ste. Marie News)

Today there has been awarded by the United States government to the men and women who are employed at the Soo Tannery of the Northwestern Leather Co. a lapel Army-Navy "E" pin and to the company itself a handsome "E" flag to be flown above the plant. These awards are "for your fine record in producing materials in the war effort" as explained in an official letter from Robert P. Patterson, under secretary of war.

Such awards are among the most coveted possessions by American civilians and industrial concerns. They betoken fine service to their country in aiding Victory. The "E" pin to a civilian is similar to what a distinguished service medal is to a fighting man at the front.

Hardly three percent of all the many thousands of war plants in America have been so outstanding in their successful production for the war that they have been singled out by the War Department for receipt of the Army-Navy "E."

So all of Sault Ste. Marie is extremely proud of these civilian soldiers at the Northwestern Leather Company's plant. As Secretary Patterson says, the awards they received today comprise the nation's tribute to their patriotism and great work in backing up our soldiers on the fighting fronts. To have among us several hundred men and women wearing on prideful chests the "E" badge is a boost to community morale. It heartens us all in the work we too are doing.

Congratulations! Men and women of the Soo Tannery. This is a happy and memorable day not only for you but for all your fellow townpeople. There is great cause for a glow of pleasure by all Sault residents. And for you tannery workers, the award ceremony will probably be just a jumping off place toward higher achievement—highest in 44 years of achievement activity for Northwestern in this community.

When you fall for buying War Bonds it proves you stand for something really worthwhile.

Thousands of our boys overseas are waiting for those letters the home folks are going to write when they find the time.

World Events Analyzed

BY LESLIE BAIN

Each time American bombers appear over Japan and drop their load more happens than the mere destruction of military targets. Every ounce of explosive planted inside Hirohito's empire widens the conflict between the higher and the lesser spirit-gods of Japan, which may result in the not too distant future in an open break between the warring deities. If the young American flyers winging their way toward Japan were told that they were dabbling in sacred precincts, helping one group of gods against another, they would think it too funny for words; yet that's just what they are doing, kindling the flames of a celestial revolution.

No other nation involved in this war has been so widely misinterpreted as Japan. Ranging from Hitler's description of them as half-apes to those who ascribe to them supernatural cunning, the Japanese appear to be a wholly inscrutable, diabolic race. The attitude of the western nations toward Japan, as revealed in their dealings with her, shows clearly the confusion which surrounds everything Japanese.

—TEDDY STARTED PARADE—

Big-hearted Teddy Roosevelt started the parade of western statesmen who went out of their way to build up a Japanese super-go. Roosevelt insisted on recognizing Japan's grab of Korea at the time when all other western nations were dead set against such recognition. The British followed suit and pretty soon the Japanese were yanked out of obscurity and made a first class power. No one, probably, was more surprised at the turn of events than the Japanese themselves.

In reality, the handful of cunning, bellicose militarists have little in common with the rest of the nation. Astute realists, they saw their chance to build an empire and drew up the Tanaka memorial to sell their idea to the emperor, financial and industrial magnates of Japan. They encountered little opposition, for the Mitsui, Mitsubishi and the Matsudairas of Nippon were all too eager to enlarge their profits through conquest. For the people they wrapped their plans into an elaborate hocus-pocus invoking the ghost of Hideoyoshi, the great warrior of the 16th century. Simultaneously they intensified their campaign to refurbish the tarnished halo of the god-emperor, who eagerly fell in with the plan. Prior to the Meiji restoration—which was the beginning of Japan's emergence as an imperialist nation—the god-emperor was all but forgotten. Throughout four hundred years the emperors were prisoners of the ruling families and many of them died of neglect and starvation. The family-gods (spirits of the deceased) ruled the people of Japan. And to a far larger extent than most westerners believe, they still do.

—CONFLICT BETWEEN GODS—

When the ambitious scheme of the militarists raised the emperor-god from obscurity, many thoughtful Japanese repeatedly pointed to the danger of setting up the emperor-god against the family gods because if it ever comes to a conflict, the people will side with their family gods. The schism between the two concepts is that the family gods command the Japanese to safeguard their lives at all costs and dedicate them to the growth of the family, whereas the emperor-god, as now presented to the Japanese, demands that the family and the life of the individual be subordinated to the whims of the national emperor-god.

Throughout Japan's history, hundreds of revolutions and uprisings occurred because of this conflict. Even in modern days, the Japanese were most reluctant to accept the dictates of the emperor-god (and the militarists who hid behind him) and twenty years of propaganda, terror and force were needed to persuade the masses to accept the Tanaka plan.

Today, the more Japanese killed, the more homes destroyed by our airmen, the faster the moment approaches when the Japanese will have to make a choice between continuing to obey their emperor-god and risk extinction, or revolt and refuse to anger further their family gods. Never in history have the family gods lost out in similar conflict and there is every reason to believe that when the showdown comes they will again assert themselves over the national emperor-god and call a halt to the slaughter.

At last we've found out how we can make money go further. Put it in War Bonds!

pronunciation of "tu" and "du" in words like picture, nature, verdure. Webster's symbols are "tu" and "du" with a curved line below linking the "tu" and "du."

Many persons believe that the linked "tu" means the sound of "t" followed by a long "u" sound (tyoo), and that the linked "du" is "d" followed by long "u" (dyoo). Therefore, they hold that nature should be pronounced "NAY-tyoor," picture should be "PIK-tyoor," verdure should be "VER-dyoor," etc. But such pronunciations are not heard in standard American speech.

Webster's linked "tu" and "du" are signs of palatalization, as explained in paragraph 249, page III, of the section on pronunciation. By "palatalization" is meant the "ch" sound of "t" and the "j" sound of "d" which, Webster explains, are "... the natural pronunciation in general use by unaffected speakers in all the common words, in which it is as natural as in righteous (RY-chuss), soldier (SOL-jer), orchard (OR-cherd).

It is best usage, then, to pronounce nature as NAY-cher; picture as PIK-cher; feature as FEE-cher; lecture as LEK-cher; modulate as MAH-joo-late; verdure as VER-jer; verdure as OR-cher, etc.

Indeed, some dictionaries, such as Thorndyke's Century and Kenyon and Knott's, show only the "ch" and "j" sounds, which are also given as the first choice in Funk & Wagnalls.

OLDEST LICENSE—Way back in 1908 your automobile had a little license and made a lot of noise—and attracted a lot of attention. Incidentally, there was no need of a big display of license plate on back and front, because everyone knew who were owners of the few cars in the community. A hit and run driver was a thing unknown, for the driver could not more have kept his identity secret than he could have driven to the moon.

Typical of the license plates of those days is one in the possession of Supervisor E. W. Carlson of Perkins, who removed it from the dashboard of a car owned by his father, John Carlson, now 82 years of age. The elder Mr. Carlson acquired the license plate when he purchased a car from the late Charles Slater of Escanaba. It was a Model S Ford roadster with no doors in front, lots of brass, and a lever on the outside the body that was for some purpose which Supervisor Carlson couldn't quite recall.

The license "plate," if it can be called such, was an aluminum disc about two inches across, with the following lettering: "Registered motor vehicle No. 4938 Michigan Motor Vehicle Law, expires June, 1909." This license was recovered by Supervisor Carlson from the dashboard of the car a couple years ago after the car itself had been dismantled and the parts pretty much scattered around.

The elder Mr. Carlson was greatly interested in automobiles when they first came out, and before he bought the Model S Ford with the aluminum license plate, he built an automobile of his own from spare parts picked up here and there. Most wonderful was that it really worked. Although he has been ill at St. Francis hospital, Mr. Carlson expects soon to return to his home at Perkins.

GOOD RECORD—While we're writing about the Carlsons, and about their home town of Perkins, it will be an opportunity to tell you about the Perkins fire department, a volunteer organization.

The department has had three fire calls so far this year—and has saved the burning building each time! When you consider that the department is composed of men of the Perkins community who volunteer their services, and are never right at the station to respond to a call, the record becomes still more impressive.

They do have a modern fire truck with a 275-gallon booster tank. If there is a well or a stream nearby they can pump additional water onto a blaze. Their record of successful fire fighting for the year is as follows:

First fire, Frank Gudwren's barn, saved; second fire, a shed at the William Shatkey place, saved; third fire (just last Sunday), the Fred Robbins home, saved.

OLD INDIAN SITE—Henry Cominess, who has a farm four miles north of Rapid River, has found a number of interesting Indian artifacts on his piece of land. His discoveries indicate that at one time there was a considerable Indian occupation at that place, and Cominess thinks it may have been a portage point.

As example of the articles he has found, Cominess brought to Escanaba a copper skinning knife of unusual shape, and a hatchet-shaped stone. The copper knife was found several years ago about four feet under the surface of the ground when a stump was pulled.

The knife has a blade about three and one-half inches long and in general shape like that of an old-fashioned odd chopper. The metal ends turn upward and inward from the blade, apparently to fit into a wood handle which, of Local political observers are predicting that the vote to be cast in the election Tuesday will be the largest in the history of the city. The registration books contain the names of 5,850 qualified electors, a record breaking registration. It is estimated that at least 4,500 of these will go to the polls, and election officials consequently are hopeful that every voter will go to the polls as early as possible.

course, has long since disappeared.

The use of copper by the American Indian is an interesting story. Mined pure from outcroppings of the metal in the Keweenaw Peninsula, or on Isle Royale, it became an important barter commodity. It was traded between individuals and tribes, was made into knives, beads and scrapers. Copper articles have been found as far south as Florida. There were famous "copper trade routes" maintained by the Indians from Northern to the east, south and southwest.

The discovery by Cominess of the copper skinning knife, the hatchet, and earlier of many flint arrow points, definitely establishes that at his place there once was an Indian village. It was probably a year-around camp, sheltered in winter, but with an outlet for canoes in summer by the Whitefish river.

WOODS SONG—Mrs. Fern Berry of Shingleton recently wrote of late-season hunting trip, where the only reward was a sensitive word picture of our Upper Peninsula country at this season of the year, and a few woods ferns which were planted in her garden and "next year will bring us the first message that spring has come." She writes:

"It grew too late for hunting and the aisles of the woods were Cathedral with the only sound, the rustling of the leaves beneath our feet. Like incense, the smell of Autumn woods came to us—a smell of damp and decaying leaves under the new carpet of crisp, dry ferns. The smell of small plants crushed beneath our feet. A smell of Fall. Here in a small woods alcove, the ferns grew tall and green, only slightly browned by the frosts and old age. We stopped for a few minutes while I gathered an armful of the root clusters. Two species of ferns grew here—the kind with the lacy umbrella like-leaves, and with fine dark stems and the delicate appearing yet hardy woods ferns. These latter grew over an old hemlock stump, and in gathering the roots in the last dimming light, I felt the cold body of a salamander in my fingers. A spotted salamander probably. To me in the dusk, it was just a little woods fellow, and I put him onto the disturbed decaying stump top where he disappeared."

NEW YORK—W. Averell Harriman flew back from Russia in 56 hours. This created a new speed record for the route, despite a three hour delay circling over an air base where the plane couldn't come in. . . . When Harriman arrived he went to the State Dept., where he was asked about the flight—for use in the State Department's announcement of his arrival. "We made it in record time," Harriman reported. . . . The State Dept. was unable to check the records at that hour, and so with typical diplomatic caution its announcement read that Mr. Harriman's flight from Moscow was made "in unusually fast time."

MAXIM KOPF, the artist, received a letter requesting him to appear immediately for examination at the Naturalization Bureau. He said good-bye to his wife, Dorothy Thompson, and rushed off. . . . Kopf hesitated, pondered, then told the Yankee examiners: "And Freedom of Private Enterprise." He passed.

WHEN THE Marquis de Cuevas' new Ballet International opens on Monday, it will have Andre Eglevsky making his debut as a choreographer in "Sentimental Colloquy." He will portray a lonely person, appear against the background of a Salvador Dali setting. "A stark tree, a single bench, and a deserted lane will be a perfect background against which to show a lonely man," Dali was told. He made no answer, went to work and reappeared with his design—a background of a crowd of people with many of them on bicycles. "Never is man more lonely," he explained, "than in a crowd."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

(Lt. Col. Robert S. Allen now on active service with the Army)

Washington—Most Americans have been so engrossed in the World War that if you told them war was brewing right here in the Western Hemisphere, they never would believe it.

Yet buzzing backstage in the Washington diplomatic corps has been a growing, worrying reverberation over the ultimate danger of war between Argentina and Chile—not this year, perhaps not next year, but before very long.

Additional attention was focused on the unhappy situation with Argentina's bid for a conference of Pan-American foreign ministers — on an obvious move to put the U. S. A. on the spot and force recognition of the Fascist Farrell military government in Argentina.

The whole tangled diplomatic controversy between Argentina, the United States and other neighbors is so involved that it takes an expert to understand it. But out of the mess emerges these basic and alarming facts:

1—Argentina is rushing armament. Hedy Lamarr's former husband, Fritz Mandel, the Austrian munitions king, about whom "Odious Delight" was written, is busy building airplanes for Argentina night and day.

2—Argentina could bomb Santiago, capital of Chile, from Mendoza, just across the Andes, in 40 minutes. It would take five hours for Chile to bomb Buenos Aires, capital of Argentina.

3—People of Chile today are worried sick over Argentina. The Socialist, Communist and Conservative parties, usually vigorously divergent, are now united on this. They fear that the Argentine Fascists, looking for means of keeping themselves in power, as Hitler did with the German people, will make a Czechoslovakia out of Chile.

—BRAZILIANS ADMIRE ARGENTINA— Other Latin Americans are divided. Paraguay, Bolivia, Peru sympathize with Argentina. Officially Brazil does not. But actually the Brazilian people, plus many of the Brazilian people, are rooting sympathetically for the one country south of the Rio Grande which has successfully thumbed its nose at the Colossus of the North and got away with it.

Nothing succeeds like success, especially in the Latin American mind. The State Department adopted only halfway measures with Argentina; snubbed her diplomatically, but made her prosperous economically by continuing to buy meat. The Argentines didn't care much if they were snubbed as long as they were prosperous.

Result is that many "good neighbors," though not liking Argentine Fascism, enjoy seeing U. S. diplomacy come to grief.

NOTE—Meanwhile, the United States is less equipped to handle things in our own hemisphere than ever before in two decades. Secretary Hull is sick. His best Latin American experts were friends of Sumner Welles and were given the gate after Welles resigned.

—DULLES AIDS AMERICA FIRST— Last month this column reported certain facts regarding John Foster Dulles, the man selected by Governor Dewey to deal with Secretary Hull on the all-important problem of post-war peace.

Inadvertently one of these columns may have given the wrong impression.

It was stated on Sept. 25 (26 on Pacific Coast) that "it was through his law firm that Dulles got mixed up indirectly with the America First Committee." The impression was conveyed that Dulles did not know too much about, or sympathize with, the fact that a member of his firm had drawn up the incorporation papers for the New York branch of America First.

Further information is now in the possession of this column, which changes the picture.

The records of the America First Committee show that in February, 1941, Janet A. Dulles, wife of Mr. Dulles, contributed $250 to the America First Committee. The records also show that in May, 1941, she contributed an additional $200.

—DULLES DENIES ISOLATIONISM—

Finally, on Nov. 5, 1941, just one month before Pearl Harbor, the records of America First credit a contribution from "John Foster Dulles" of $500. On that same date, Edwin S. Webster, Jr., partner in the investment firm of Kidder, Peabody, and Secretary of the New York Chapter, received a letter from Mrs. Dulles saying that she had told Mrs. Cram, the night before, that she would match her contributions.

On the same day, Nov. 5, Mr. Webster wrote back to Mrs. Dulles thanking her for helping to meet the cost of the rally. (The America First Committee had held a big Lindbergh rally at about that time.)

Last summer, when queried about the fact that his firm had incorporated the New York Chapter of America First, Dulles was quoted as saying: "No one who knows me and what I have done and stood for consistently over 37 years of active life could reasonably think that I could be an isolationist or 'America First' in deed or spirit."

F.D.R. LAUDED BY JESSE JONES

Gives President Credit
For Recovery From Depression

Washington, (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones said tonight that President Roosevelt led the nation out of its worst depression, is leading it to victory, and will be needed to establish a lasting peace.

The address, prepared for broadcast over CBS, was released by the Democratic National committee.

Asserting that the war could not have been better planned, better supplied or better fought, Jones added that credit for all the "top planning" is due the president as commander-in-chief, and his chiefs of staff and their associates.

Saying that the basis of American business is and must remain "free enterprise but not freedom for a few to exploit the many," Jones gave these as Mr. Roosevelt's views on matters affecting the nation's economy:

"President Roosevelt knows that only through private enterprise can people be free to work in the line of their choosing. X X X

"He knows the importance of government cooperating with business and helping business where necessary. He knows that it is business and industry in their many phases that provide employment, that give people work. He knows that government and business are dependent upon each other in our country—in our kind of government. That is why we X X X are winning the war, and that is why we will win and maintain the peace."

The War department estimates a saving by cooks and mess sergeants in the Army's nine service commands of 12,000,000 pounds of fats and greases in 1944.

Major Issues Evaded In Current Campaign

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

New York—Seldom have so many said so much about so little. That paraphrase of the now historic description of the battle of Britain pretty well sums up the presidential campaign to date.

It would be interesting to figure out how much of the time of both candidates, and the men around them, has been spent in dwelling on errors of the past. They've pretty well convinced us that in the approach to the catastrophe of the war nobody was right.

As a matter of fact, that's fairly close to the truth. From, let's say, 1937 on, we were a divided and a confused people. We simply didn't want to see the threat to our security that was looming larger on the horizon.

Infrequently, as in his speech calling for a quarantine of the aggressors, President Roosevelt spoke out in warning. Most people didn't want to hear. So we went through a period of drift in which a great many foolish things were said about phony wars and America's isolation from the rest of the world.

But during the past four years we've proved that we could unite; that we could do an unbelievable production job; that we could put ships and fighting men around the globe. We didn't know our own strength, our own greatness.

Carries Responsibility

I don't think there are many Americans who care to hear the mistakes of the past rehearsed. They want to know how we intend to use the power we've created. Most of us haven't yet begun to realize what a weight of responsibility inevitably goes with that power.

President Roosevelt, in his Philadelphia and Chicago speeches, touched this theme. But he leaned heavily on generalizations, sketching in a rosy picture of a tomorrow with 60,000,000 jobs and three times the foreign trade we had before 1940.

There's a curious parallel with the campaign of four years ago. Hanging over us then were vital decisions concerning the war. You would never have known it if you'd confined yourself to listening to the speeches of the candidates.

This time we're faced with decisions related to the peace; decisions that will determine our whole future. And they won't wait.

In Chicago, this week, a world conference on civil aviation opens. Other nations, and particularly the British, have been impatient to know what we intended to do with our vast air potential. The air transport command has put military air lines literally around the earth, and in a relatively short time we could have commercial planes flying on those lines.

British Are Nervous

Our superiority makes the British distinctly nervous. They point out that they own a great deal of real estate around the world which is strategically located for air bases. Recently the London Daily Telegraph's air correspondent, in an open letter to the British delegation to the Chicago conference, said:

"Although I hope you will achieve agreement on the major issues of international control over air routes and subsidies, I suggest it must not be at the price of our own air bases and our own future in those parts of the world which we should be best able to serve."

"Above all else, we need to fly and buy commonwealth. We do not want to rely upon American aircraft after the war. Nor need we hand over any of our bases throughout the world."

That gives some idea of the complex difficulties to be worked out by the conferees in Chicago. Perhaps it is too complicated to come into a political campaign.

To say that, however, is to admit that discussions of major issues, except in the broadest sense, is impossible. It is to concede that somewhere our democracy is short-circuited and that the public will only take in the kind of crude attack which has characterized this campaign.

When the U. S. population reaches an estimated 140 millions in the decade, 1950-60, it is estimated about 360 million acres of land will be needed to provide food and clothing for them.

Hallowe'en Carnival Draws Record Crowd

Approximately 1,800 kids kept out of Hallowe'en mischief by whooping it up Tuesday evening at the 23d annual Hallowe'en carnival held under the auspices of the student council at the senior high school. It was one of the most successful events of its kind ever staged and the youngsters, together with many not so young, were on the go from 7:30 until quitting time well after 10 o'clock.

Mac Danielson, president of the student council, was general supervisor. Members of committees assisting in the work of putting on the affair included: Decorations, Edith Harrington and Irma Bartley; 10 o'clock show, Margaret Weber, Marilyn Groos and Mary Walsh; tickets, Donald Wickholm, Jack Schilt; posters, Bill Dufour and K. Wylie; favors and home room shows, Helen St. Martin and Florence Olson; cleanup, Donald Swellander, LeRoy Finn and Wendell Buckland.

Anti-Inflation Campaign To Be Launched Friday

A consumer-grocer anti-inflation campaign which will be conducted in Upper Michigan in connection with a nation-wide effort, will get under way here at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning.

At that hour first publicity will be given the campaign in a radio four station hookup, the Office of Price Administration announced Wednesday.

The broadcast, which will reach practically the entire upper peninsula, will be in the form of a three way discussion between Mrs. Karl Gray, housewife, Arthur Servant, grocer, and Norman D. Starrett, acting OPA information executive.

The discussion will cover pertinent facts relative to the national campaign which will be waged aggressively during the months of November and December. It will bring out the salient points regarding the OPA fight to stabilize prices to head off inflation after the war.

"Everybody who foots the bill for food has a personal interest in this campaign," L. L. Farrell, district OPA director, stated Wednesday. "Statistics show that the average family spends 40 per cent of its income on food alone. Therefore, food prices are a key factor in the family economy."

Editor's Note: This is the 43rd of the Ernie Pyle war dispatches that are being reprinted while Ernie is on leave. This one was written in England while he was awaiting the invasion of France.

London, June, 1944—Lieut. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle, head of the Eighth Air Force over here, noticed one day in the roster of officers at his staff headquarters the name of a Captain Doolittle.

The name is not a very ordinary one, and he made a mental note that some day he would look the fellow up for a little chat. One day not long after that his phone rang and the voice at the other end said, "This is Captain Doolittle."

"Oh yes," said the General, "I had noticed your name and I meant to call you up sometime."

"I'd like to come in and see you," said the voice at the other end.

"Why yes, do that," the General said. "I'm pretty busy these days, but I'll switch you to my aide and he'll make an appointment for you. Glad you called, Captain. I'll look forward to seeing you."

He was just ready to hang up when the voice came back plaintively over the phone:

"But Dad, this is me. Don't you recognize me? I've got a package for you from Mom."

The General exploded: "Well, why in hell didn't you say so in the first place!"

It was Capt. Jimmy Doolittle Jr., a B-26 pilot in the Ninth Air Force. The General hasn't got around yet to seeing the other Captain Doolittle. It'll probably turn out to be his brother or something.

The last time I had seen General Doolittle was some 16 months ago, way down at the desert airdrome of Biskra on the edge of the Sahara. That was when he was running our African bomber force that was plastering the Tunisian ports.

General Doolittle flew in one afternoon from the far forward airdrome of Youks les Bains. The night before his entire crew except for the co-pilot had been killed in a German bombing at the Youks field.

His crew had manned their plane's guns until it got too hot, and then made a run for an old bomb crater 50 yards away. It was one of those heartbreaking freaks of hard luck. A bomb hit the crater just as they reached it, and blew them all to pieces.

General Doolittle has written hundreds, perhaps thousands, of letters to people who have lost sons or husbands in his air forces. But one of the men in that crew was the hardest subject he has ever had to write home about.

Here is the reason:

When he led the famous raid on Tokyo, Doolittle had a mechanic who had been with him a long time. Doolittle was a colonel then. The mechanic went on the Tokio raid with him.

You remember the details of that raid, which have gradually seeped out. The planes were badly scattered. Some were shot down over Japanese territory. Others ran out of gas. Some of the crews bailed out. Others landed in Russia. The remainder splattered themselves all over the rice paddies of China.

That night Doolittle was lower than he had ever been before in his life. There wasn't any humor in the world for him that night. He sat with his head down and thought to himself:

"You have bailed up the biggest chance anybody could ever have. You have sure made a mess of this affair. You've lost most of your planes. The whole thing was a miserable failure. You'll spend the rest of your life in Leavenworth for this, and be lucky to get out of it that easy."

As he sat there this sergeant-mechanic came up and said:

"Don't feel so bad about it, Colonel."

Doolittle paid no attention. But the sergeant kept at him.

"It's not as bad as it seems. Why, I'll bet you that within a year you'll have a Congressional Medal for it and be a brigadier general."

Doolittle just snorted.

"Well, I'll bet you so," the sergeant said. "And I'd like to ask one thing. As long as you're flying I'd like to be your mechanic."

That finally got inside Doolittle's gloom. Somebody had confidence in him. He began to buck up. So he said:

"Son, as long as I've got an airplane you're its mechanic, even if we live to be a thousand years old."

As you know, he did get a Congressional Medal of Honor, and now he has not only one star but three of a lieutenant general. And that sergeant, who devoted himself to Colonel Doolittle's miserable night out there in China, was still General Doolittle's mechanic the night they landed at Youks les Bains in February of 1943. He was one of the men who ran for the shell hole that night.

General Doolittle had to write the letter to his parents.

Pre-invasion shelling by U. S. warships was said to have destroyed most of the lowland trees on Peleliu Island in the Palaus.

FLUORINE HALTS DENTAL DECAY

Lemon-Yellow Gas Used In Experiments At Tufts College

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Associated Press Science Editor

New York—A reduction of new decay in teeth by 26 to 50 per cent by rubbing a little flourine on them was reported tonight by Dr. Basil G. Ribby, dean of Tufts Dental College, Boston, at a meeting here of the New York Institute of Clinical Oral Pathology.

Flourine is the lemon-yellow gas, the most highly reactive of nature's 92 chemical elements, whose presence in drinking water in very small amounts is thought to build better teeth in children.

Dr. Ribby was one of five leading flourine authorities speaking tonight, and all of them said that until some years pass, flourine for better teeth must be considered experimental because this chemical is toxic.

In all the tooth applications no toxic results have been noticed, but the experts agreed that it will require a long time to be sure that there is no cumulative poisoning.

The Tufts experiments used sodium flourine.

"It is concluded," Dr. Ribby said, "that topical (surface) applications of flourides will reduce the activity of dental caries in young people and that this procedure has considerable potential value as a method of combating tooth decay."

In all the flourine work so far reported by scientists, the benefits are confined to the young. In drinking water the flourine builds better teeth only during the period when teeth are growing.

From 1929 through 1935, the American consumer public normally borrowed more than eight per cent of the annual national income.

Marines invading Peleliu Island in the Palaus named one of the hills "Million Dollar Ridge" since more than a million dollars worth of ammunition was spent taking it.

DRAFT BOARDS TO AID VETSSoon Will Face Task Of Returning Men To Private Life

Having practically completed their first mission, that of placing the national manpower into the armed services, selective service boards of the nation now face the second function, that of supervising the veteran's return to civilian life and re-employment.

Interpretations of the rights and benefits with which veterans, by legislative action, have been endowed were presented at a meeting of draft board members, clerks and re-employment representatives Wednesday afternoon at the city hall. Explaining the function of the local selective service organizations in the future handling of veteran rehabilitation were Major Arthur A. Holmes, and Major W. J. Myers, from the operations section of Michigan selective service headquarters in Lansing.

It was explained that approximately 600,000 Michigan men have been, or will be, militarized, and by the end of the war will have attained veteran status. The task of meeting the problem of returning these men to private life falls by law upon the local selective service boards. Meetings such as was held here Wednesday are being conducted generally throughout the country in an effort to prepare the boards for the time when general demobilization takes place. Two phases of the future problem were discussed; one, the reinstatement of a worker at his old job or job of similar seniority rights and pay, and two, to find jobs for those who were unemployed previous to their entry into the armed services.

The veteran, Major Holmes said, is entitled by law to job reinstatement. Only one responsibility rests upon the shoulders of the veteran and that is the requirement that he must make application for his old job within 40 days after severing his connection with the armed services. It was brought out during the discussion, however, that an amendment now is under consideration which will increase this period to 90 days.

Failure to make proper application within the time limits set, relieves the old employer from all obligation, and the veteran then loses all rights and benefits to which he otherwise would be entitled.

Draft boards were advised to emphatically encourage the veteran to return to his old job. Under the terms of the law the employer must re-employ him and is under obligation to keep him on the pay roll for a period of one year, even though it may be necessary to lay off all other civilian employees.

If the employer, due to business conditions, changed circumstances or any other reason, feels he cannot afford to take back his former employee, the burden of proving his inability rests upon him.

The bulk of the task of placing the returning veterans will fall upon the draft board clerks, it was explained, and the importance of keeping complete records of each individual case was emphasized. Board members were told they are expected to do more than merely offer advice to the veteran. If necessary they must arrange for a definite interview between the veteran and his former employer, they must obtain a record of the result of the interview. Once the veteran is back to work, the boards must remain in contact with the employer, and if necessary, sell him on the idea of carrying out his legal obligation.

Provision has been made in the law for the protection of the veteran through court action when necessary, and definite penalties

TO MY FELLOW CIO MEMBERS WHO REFUSE TO "CLEAR EVERYTHING with SIDNEY"

Like Brother Sidney Hillman, I am an officer of the C.I.O. Also, like brother Hillman, I am organizing my fellow workers politically, but I am organizing them in opposition to the things Brother Hillman stands for.

Many of you called for a Political Labor Committee which would oppose the high handed methods of the POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE. Now you have it.

I have taken a leave of absence to organize the Labor Division of Peoples Committee to Defend Life Insurance and Savings at wages exactly the same as I get for working at the bench.

I have no personal quarrel with Brother Hillman but refuse to "clear everything with Sidney". Although he is high in our Union and I am only a minor official, I assert my right, as an American Citizen, to vote and work for a President of my own choosing. I have been censured for this and I may lose my Union Membership and my job. However, I refuse to be intimidated or coerced.

For three generations, my family has served in America's wars. My two sons and daughter are in this war. I would be a coward to put my Union Membership and job above my political freedom—my Union Card above my country's flag.

I call on every Brother C.I.O. member who values his political independence to stand with me in this fight.

I ASK YOU TO REFUSE TO CONTRIBUTE TO THE POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE.

I ASK YOU TO REFUSE TO BE COERCED OR INTIMIDATED.

I ASK YOU TO STAND ON YOUR RIGHTS AS FREE AMERICANS.

I ASK YOU TO VOTE AND WORK FOR THE PRESIDENT OF YOUR CHOICE—NOT THE CHOICE OF BROTHER HILLMAN AND EARL BROWDER.

I ASK YOU TO STAND WITH ME IN THIS FIGHT FOR POLITICAL FREEDOM OF AMERICAN LABOR.

TO ALL AMERICANS

When a union member loses his union card he loses his job. The thousands of C.I.O. workers who have already refused to contribute to the POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE are under the threat of losing their union cards and their jobs.

Town Hall Gasps, Laughs, Is Entertained By Polgar

With nothing more than his own phenomenal mind and two expressive hands, Dr. Franz Polgar, mental wizard extraordinary, last night brought laughs, gasps and high entertainment to Escanaba Town Hall.

His program opened with a demonstration of his amazing memory, in which he retained 10 columns of figures, all of eight figures in length, in his mind and then added them out to a total in the nine figure bracket to come to a correct answer which stumped the paper and pencil addition of a volunteer from the audience. In another test of his memory he retained the placing of certain key words on a blackboard, arranged in squares, and to these added numbers which added to a total of 99—a figure suggested from the audience.

As a test of his ability at reading other's minds he left the auditorium. The check for his appearance here was secreted in the shoe of a woman on the stage. Returning, Polgar, through the assistance of a volunteer, who directed him mentally, found the check within a matter of a few minutes.

In the field of hypnosis he showed himself the master showman.

Volunteers from the audience were placed in a hypnotic sleep. One youth of 18, told that he was three, sucked his thumb, recalled breaking a mirror. At the mental age of six he recalled and named his first grade school teacher.

Glasses of water were served the group, and told by Polgar that it was champagne they began laughing and giggling. Told it was medicine they grimaced in distaste.

Other subjects, told to perform certain actions after they awakened, did so although they visibly tried to restrain themselves. A woman placed her hat on the head of the youth next to her, the youth unlaced his shoes because they were "too tight," a young woman jumped up and called "Fire!" three times—and then sank back into her chair with a smile that certainly was not one of alarm.

At the snap of his fingers they came out from under Polgar's spell with a smile—and that generally was the effect the mental wizard had on his audience. It was amazing, mystifying—and satisfying.

CASE OF POLIO IS FOUND HERE

Larry Hermanson, 7, Has Slight Paralysis Of Right Wrist

A mild case of infantile paralysis has been found in Gladstone, it was stated yesterday by Dr. M. A. Elstein, head of the county health unit.

The afflicted youth is Larry Hermanson, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hermanson, 605 Superior avenue. He was taken sick Sunday and now has a paralysis of the right wrist and lacks strength in the right hand.

The home has been placed in quarantine and measures are being taken to prevent the spread of the disease, Dr. Elstein declared.

Parents are advised to immediately contact their family physician if any of their children show signs of colds, headaches or stiffness of the neck, any one or all of which may be symptoms of the disease, so that immediate action may be taken.

A number of children have been exposed to the disease as Larry was a pupil in the second grade at the First Ward school. All are being watched closely for possible contagion.

Parents should see that their children obtain proper rest and should be careful to keep them from catching cold, as precautionary measures.

Impressive Rites Mark Installation

Attractive ceremonies marked the installation of officers of Minnewasca Chapter No. 96, Order of the Eastern Star, held Tuesday evening in the Masonic hall.

The ceremonies opened with the opening of the chapter by Mrs. H. J. Miller, Worthy Matron, who gave her farewell address and then John P. Vogt gave the patron's address.

In retiring the outgoing matron and patron were led to the star points and at each given a gift appropriate to the color of the station while officers extended their best wishes. Both were then presented with decorated gavels as mementoes of the occasion and the retiring matron closed with a tribute to her staff.

To open the installation Mrs. R. I. Simpson, the Worthy Matron, knelt at the altar as Mrs. H. J. Skogquist sang "The Perfect Prayer," accompanied by Mrs. Ed Olson Jr. Mrs. Miller presented her successor with an arm bouquet of roses and pom poms, and then Worthy Patron R. I. Simpson led the Worthy Matron to the east.

With lights dimmed and only white spots lighting the altar and Bible and an amber spot lighting the star, an impressive ceremony called "Eastern Light" was held.

The Associate Matron and Associate Patron, Mrs. Oscar Ohman and John P. Vogt, each carrying a lighted and unlighted candle, advanced east and addressed the Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron and lighted their candles. The Associate Matron then made a pledge to the Worthy Matron, other officers lighted their candles and there was a beautiful candle march ending in a circle before the altar as Mrs. Skogquist sang an appropriate song.

The Matron then gave her address and presented guests of the evening. Several Swedish dialogue numbers were given by Mrs. Elwood Taylor of Manistique and were well received. Singing of "God Bless America" by the group led by Mrs. Skogquist concluded the installation.

A delicious lunch was then served.

Guests included Mrs. Henry Bathke, Mrs. Wallace Hibbard, Mrs. A. N. Wilson, Mrs. Henry Olson, Mrs. Edward Erickson, Mrs. Ralph Shiner and Mrs. Dan Raess of Escanaba, and Mrs. Elwood Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mueller and Mrs. Leslie Boucher of Manistique.

PO Ralph Nelson Recently Wed to Canadian Girl

A recent wedding ceremony, conducted at Windsor, Ont., is of local interest because the bridegroom is PO Ralph Nelson, U. S. N. R., son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nelson, of Gulliver. The following in part, is clipped from the Windsor Daily Star:

"At an impressive double ring candlelight ceremony last evening at the Central United church, in a lovely setting of chrysanthemums, the Rev. Harry Mick united in marriage Marjorie Evelyn Fitch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fitch, of Oneida court, and P. O. Ralph Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nelson of Gulliver, Michigan.

"Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in white chiffon velvet, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, scalloped and trimmed with self-applique. The fitted bodice formed a point in the full skirt styled with a quaint hoop effect and the long fitted sleeves were scalloped to the wrists, and the bustle effect of her skirt was applied to match the bodice. Her three-quarter-length veil was held in a Juliet cap of corded velvet applied in velvet leaves and sequins, and she wore a single strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom and carried a white Bible topped with gardenias, rosebuds and stephanotis.

"Miss Patricia Brown, cousin of the bride, as maid of honor wore deep blue velvet, with a sweetheart neckline, a long bodice forming a rounded effect in the back and a point over the full skirt. Mrs. Signe Cameron, sister of the bridegroom, wore powder blue velvet, styled like the gown of the maid of honor, and they both wore French lace caps to match, and carried semi-colonial bouquets of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums.

"Mr. Carlton Cameron assisted as best man and Mr. Ed Aldous and Mr. Norman Edhven were ushers. During the ceremony Miss Beryl Nichols sang 'Till Walk Beside You,' and 'Because.'

"A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. Later PO and Mrs. Nelson left for Chicago where they will spend a few days before going to Memphis, Tennessee where the bridegroom is stationed and where they will reside."

It is planned to make the collections every six weeks, which will bring the next collection early in December. It has been suggested to those housewives without children in grade school who find it hard to get the fat salvage into the store, that they may call some school child they know to bring in the fat for the collection. Red points are returned to all donors through the children.

TROJANS LOSE AT STEPHENSON

Stephenson, Nov. 1. — The Stephenson high school Eagles closed their football season in a mid-week game here this afternoon by defeating the St. Joseph Trojans of Escanaba, 19 to 6, in an interesting game.

The Trojans drew first blood, scoring on a sustained drive after receiving the opening kickoff. Bob Marenger made the counter from the two yard line. Miron's placement for the extra point was blocked.

St. Joseph kicked off to the Eagles and Stephenson duplicated the St. Joseph performance, marching all the way down for the score. Bardowski lugged the ball over from the five yard line. Mellinger's placekick was blocked and the score was tied, 6 to 6.

In the second period, the Eagles moved ahead when Atkinson scored on a reverse play. Mellinger's placekick split the goal posts for the extra point.

Mack Considers Deal To Purchase Minneapolis Club

Chicago, Nov. 1. (AP) — Connie Mack, president and manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, has proposed purchase of the Minneapolis club of the American association, but first must confer with directors of his organization, owner Mike Kelley of the Millers said today.

Kelley and Mack discussed the deal here today and yesterday. "Connie has to talk with his directors and will let me know in three or four days whether he will buy my club," Kelley said. "I own every share of stock in my club, so I don't have to confer with anyone."

Declining to mention the consideration involved, Kelley said "Connie had one proposition and I had another, but the deal still is on."

point was blocked.

Both teams demonstrated lots of offensive power but not too much defense and as a result the ball moved up and down the field with striking rapidity. Bardowski carved long gains through the St. Joseph line and Bob Marenger ploughed through the Stephenson line almost consistently.

Both teams lost at least one scoring opportunity by fumbles.

BRAVES WORK ON DEFENSE

Gladstone At Peak For Saturday Game With Escanaba High

Gladstone, Mich. — As Gladstone high school's undefeated and untied Braves prepare for the season's windup here Saturday against Escanaba high school, a portion of the practice sessions are being devoted to organizing a defense which will stop the dangerous passing attack and also the running game of the Eskymos.

In the Marinette game last weekend, in which the Eskymos almost tipped the dope bucket, the county-seaters tried 23 aerials, completing 10 and having one intercepted. This is a good percentage in any league.

Other than minor bruises which have responded to treatment there were no injuries to the Braves in the Stephenson tilt and barring practice injuries the team should be at peak strength when they meet their traditional foe.

The team didn't look particularly impressive against Stephenson either offensively or defensively but there is a decided change both in the attitude and play of the squad this week.

Gladstone to date has a record of six straight victories for the season in comparison to a rather mediocre record made by the Eskymos. The Braves beat Munising 40-0, Manistique 26 to 6, Marquette 12-0, Newberry 32 to 7, Ishpeming 6 to 0 and Stephenson 18-0.

Chambers and Rich of Crystal Falls and Barry of Vulcan will handle the game.

Bob Kelly Stays With Irish Squad

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 1. (AP) — In again, out again, Bob Kelly's out and—now he's in again.

That variation of the old Finnegan refrain must have been whirling through Notre Dame Coach Ed McKeever's brain tonight after his backfield ace, Bob Kelly, first received orders transferring him for further naval training elsewhere and then was ordered to stay with the Navy V-12 unit here—for a while at least.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

The element of surprise is a particularly important part of football and is one of the major reasons why the great fall sport has received such popular support. A large percentage of football plays are designed to utilize the element of surprise. Spinner plays, delayed bucks and reverse plays are based upon this principle. The effectiveness of the forward pass is also dependent to a considerable extent upon the element of surprise. The quick kick would be worth nothing if it failed to catch opponents off guard.

The surprise element in football serves the very useful purpose of giving the underdog a chance. A team may lack the offensive power of its opponents but still win the game by proper utilization of surprise plays. Most of the sensational plays in football, as a matter of fact, develop from this manner. The forward and lateral passes are surprise plays that are designed to catch the opponents napping. Very often they result in long touchdown runs that thrill the fans.

Perhaps in no other major sport is the element of surprise utilized to the extent that it is in football. It is the main reason why football is regarded as the game of upset, why the fall season is so generously sparkled with unexpected football results. This element, of course, also is evident in baseball in such plays as the bunt, the squeeze play and the stolen base but not to the extent that it is in football. Surprise plays are even less rare in the game of basketball, although this element is by no means eliminated from the sport.

Hit and Miss—The largest number of archers in history are roaming the woods at Blaney this season. The archery deer hunting season opened yesterday. Unlike the riflemen, archers like warm weather because they have to hide to get a crack at the deer. The riflemen drive them into the open. The steel pointed arrows are powerful enough to go right through the animal at the close distance from which archers hunt. The sale of archery sets to youngsters and oldsters alike indicate a rapid development of the age old sport of archery.

Filly Wins More Honors At Pimlico

Baltimore, Nov. 1. (AP)—Twilight Tear, the smooth-striding three-year-old filly from Warren Wright's Calumet Farm, tacked up another claim to horse of the year honors today when she ran and hid from two rivals in the eighth Pimlico special.

But for the fast time of 1:56 3-5 for the mile and three sixteenths, the crowd of 12,961 might well have believed that the bay daughter of Bull Lea was out for a morning gallop.

She grabbed the lead two jumps after leaving the starting gate and never was headed in picking up the purse of $25,000 and running her earnings for two seasons to $202,165.

At the finish, Doug Dodson, 23-year-old veteran from Elk River, Idaho, had the Calumet miss swinging on the bit six lengths in front of the Greentree stable's Devil Diver, outstanding claimant to turf laurels in the handicap division. Megogo, from H. L. Lunder's Christiana stable, trailed by another ten lengths.

In chalking up her 14th victory in 17 starts this year (she has been out of the money only once), Twilight Tear came within one-fifth of a second of Riverland's track record and matched the best time for the stake set up by Sea Biscuit in his famous 1938 match race with War Admiral.

Captain Filley Is Making Comeback With Notre Dame

BY RED GRANGE
The Original Man-In-Motion

(Written for NEA Service.)
In the thick of the fight again, Patrick Filley is adding another great comeback story to modern football.

When "starting at left guard for Notre Dame will be Pat Filley, captain" blared through the public address system at Fenway Park, Boston, it marked the culmination of the plucky Irishman's efforts to win a starting berth after an uphill convalescence battle following an operation late in June for the removal of cartilages in both knees.

Filley failed to respond to treatment after the surgery was completed. Throughout most of the summer there seemed little or no chance that he would again be able to wear the Blue and Gold. But the tenacious spirit that marks his performances exemplified itself in his determination to recover in time for action.

Taken Appearance
Twenty pounds under weight late in August, barely able to walk, Filley remained in the sun, walking a little farther each day, gradually building himself up.

Two weeks before the opener in Pittsburgh, Filley got into a uniform for the first time. Three days before the game he ran through signal drills. It was remarkable that he could make a token appearance of five minutes against the Panthers.

The following week Filley worked out a little more, but did not engage in contact work. When Tulane threatened to score at the very outset of the game of Oct. 7, however, Filley was rushed in to rally the teen-age kids. The Green Wave was stopped.

The week of the Dartmouth game Filley let himself go more and more. The first touchdown was scored over him. He stood out against Wisconsin.

When Most Needed
And now Notre Dame's first two-time football captain in a quarter of a century is ready to resume his All-America play of 1943.

Filley—5 foot 8, 182 pounds—is a home-grown athlete. He was a football star and wrestling champion at South Bend's Central High.

Filley won a Notre Dame monogram in 1942, was elected captain last season, when his competition did not count against his eligibility due to wartime regulations. He received a medical discharge from the Marines in May of this year.

Captain Filley got back in the thick of things when he was most needed.

Notre Dame is green up front, so there is plenty of room for an established star in his fourth year of varsity ball.

Phils Pick Pitcher On Milwaukee Club

Chicago, Nov. 1. (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies, opening the major leagues' draft meeting today with first choice, selected Pitcher Carl Sproull from the Milwaukee club of the American Association.

The Washington club, selecting first in the American league, chose Marino Pieretti, also a pitcher, from the Portland club of the Pacific Coast league.

Brooklyn picked Pitcher Tom Seals from the San Francisco Seals, while the Chicago White Sox snared Danny Reynolds, a shortstop, from the Newark club of the International league.

Thirteen clubs—the St. Louis Browns and Cardinals, champions of their respective leagues did not make a player bid and Detroit's choices were ineligible—drafted a total of 19 players valued under the draft system at $137,500. This was three more than last year when 16 were chosen at $111,000.

The Detroit Tigers bid for Alex Mustakus of Toronto, and Outfielders Al Mele of Syracuse and Ed Levy of Milwaukee.

"PRESTONE" Anti-Freeze KEEPS MOVING UP TO THE FRONT!

THE WAR PRODUCTION BOARD, with the cooperation of the Anti-Freeze Industry Advisory Committee, has put into effect a state allocation plan for the distribution of all brands of anti-freeze. This is your assurance that there should be enough anti-freeze of some kind to protect the nation's motorized equipment this winter.

However, "Prestone" brand anti-freeze may not be available in some localities. The supply for civilian use is considerably reduced because heavy shipments are going overseas for the Armed Forces.

If you are able to get "Prestone" anti-freeze remember that it lasts all winter. It won't evaporate, boil away or lose effectiveness through "foaming." Protects against rust and corrosion.
